

Markus Latzke is the Programme Director for Business Administration in the Public Health Sector at IMC University of Applied Sciences Krems and a Professor at the Institute of Health Management. His research interests lie in the fields of organization and human resource management. Markus has published on the topics of organizational change, organizational culture and organizational learning, particularly in the context of healthcare and patient safety. He has also investigated career-related issues, including the reasons and consequences of job transitions and sustainable careers for healthcare professionals. He delivers lectures on human resource management, organizational behavior and academic writing at Bachelor, Master and MBA levels.

<https://orcid.org/0000-0002-2289-1698>